Wilson's in a class of his own. He has been a stalwart of our local professional orchestra in the trumpet section for more than 23 years – adding leadership roles over time. He brought the chamber orchestra from a financial and artistic abyss to the vital music organization it is today. With all of that, it was his beautifully written and performed program exploring Copland's "Appalachian Spring" for the philharmonic in February 2013 that confirmed his status as a community treasure.
